

Malaria Matters

by Jane Chiodini MSc RGN RM FFTM RCPS(Glasg)

www.janechiodini.co.uk

What is Malaria Matters?

Malaria Matters is an e-learning course developed around the principles of malaria prevention. The course follows the 2016 document Guidelines for malaria prevention in travellers from the UK written by the Public Health England Advisory Committee for Malaria Prevention.

Who was Malaria Matters written by?

The 'Malaria Matters' content was written by Jane Chiodini, a travel health specialist nurse working in the UK. For more details see <http://www.janechiodini.co.uk/about/>

Who is it suitable for?

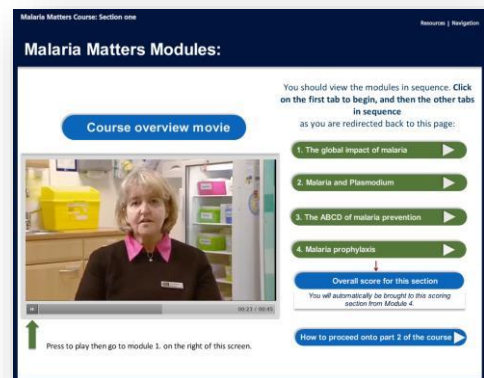

Any healthcare professional who is interested in developing a good working knowledge especially wishing to improve their knowledge on malaria prevention care when advising travellers.

How long does it take to complete

Malaria Matters could take up to six hours to complete. You can log on to the course and log out after saving the work you've undertaken, as often as you like, but once you've enrolled the course will only be active for 14 days.

How much does it cost?

Malaria Matters is available free of charge. However, the number of people who can access it on the learning platform each month is limited, so it would be greatly appreciated if you only enrolled to undertake the work if you have every intention to complete the studying.

How is the course organised?

There are five learning modules – the whole course is divided into seven sections. There are assessments along the way designed to check your knowledge. A short final end of course test leads to a certificate of completion if you pass. The programme is set so that you have to progress through the learning in strict order of the course. There are many interactive features in this learning, including an animation film of the malaria lifecycle, a video of a travel consultation and some interactive case studies.

How would I enrol to study Malaria Matters?

Go to

<https://janechiodini.learnapon.com/store>

then follow the instructions.

Any problems - please contact me on jane@janechiodini.co.uk

Feedback would also be appreciated.

Thank you.

Please note, this course is free of charge to NHS employees including NHS GP practice nurses.

Private companies need to contact me to discuss use of the course for their workers.

Usually a charitable donation to 'Malaria No More' would be requested in this situation.