

New to Travel Health

A course for healthcare professionals new to travel medicine

Travel Health is a complex field of practice with travellers visiting further afield and undertaking increasingly adventurous activities. The practice of travel medicine is predominantly undertaken by Practice Nurses in Primary Care settings, however, this course is also suitable for any healthcare professionals who plan to undertake travel health in settings other than primary care.

Training is essential and this two-day course is designed to prepare you in the foundations of the subject.

Led by Jane Chiodini*, the course is designed with a gap between the two days, allowing you time to put some of the learning into practice, before returning for more teaching. This format also enables you to consolidate day one and discuss any issues that you have.

Please note: Course attendees will be provided with some personal learning tasks which are recommended to be undertaken between the two days of the course. This work comprises a minimum of four of learning time.

Suitable for: All registered healthcare professionals brand new to the practice of travel medicine.

Cost: £295 including refreshments and course materials and Eventbrite booking fee.

Course structure

DAY ONE : 9.30-16.30

- Introduction to travel medicine
- Tools and resources available
- The importance of travel risk assessment
- Overview of travel related diseases and their prevention

Exercises provided to put concepts into practice at work

DAY TWO : 9.30-16.30

- Recap on day 1 and work undertaken in the interim period
- Legal issues and responsibilities of the healthcare professional undertaking travel medicine
- Malaria
- Further travel related diseases
- Where to go from here...

Jane Chiodini

Travel Health Specialist Nurse

*Jane Chiodini MSc RGN RM FFTM RCPS(Glasg) Queen's Nurse, was the first nurse in England to obtain the MSc degree in travel medicine. She is a leading figure in the UK in this field of practice, was Chair of the RCN Travel Health Forum 2000-2006 and lead author on the RCN guidance: Travel health nursing, career and competence development. In 2018 she was inaugurated as Dean of the Faculty of Travel Medicine of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow. Still practicing in the clinical field, Jane sees travellers in primary care in London very part time. Jane started training healthcare professionals 20 years ago and is passionate about teaching and developing tools for practitioners to use in a travel consultation.